The Grand Telegraph around the World.

[illegible] Col. [illegible] of Russia [illegible] Telegraph [illegible] came to this country [illegible] the telegraph system in use [illegible] in constructing a line from Omsk in Siberia to Irkoutsk and thence to the Pacific. Col. [illegible] has visited the Chamber of Commerce of New York [illegible] the P. [illegible] the United States, has explored the region of the Amoor River. At the present time there is communication from London, by way of Moscow to Omsk; the distance thence to Pe[illegible] 3,500 miles, is traversed by the regular post [illegible] days. The Russian Government next year will extend the line to Irkoutsk, which will reduce the time from London to Pekin to [illegible] days. From Irkoutsk it will be extended up the Russian boundary on the Ortsaree River to the Amoor and down the Amoor to its mouth. While Russia is pushing the telegraph eastwardly, the line from St. Louis to San Francisco is nearly completed. Mr. Collins yesterday received a letter from Col. Hiram Sibley stating that there is now to construct but 200 miles of the line between the Rocky Mountains and the Salt Lake, and that it will be open for the transmission of messages from New York to San Francisco within 40 days. The Russian lines across the Urals and that of the United States across the Rocky Mountains, being completed, there remains only the intervening space on the American side, from Portland, Oregon to Behrings Straits, about 1,700 miles, and on the Asiatic side from the Straits to the mouth of the Amoor, or about 2,200 miles, in all say about 4,000 miles to complete the circuit of the earth. By this route submarine cables are dispensed with, except at the crossing of the Straits, about 40 miles, and which are sounded the whole distance, and even this may be divided into shorter sections by using islands lying in the Straits. The Committee on Commerce of the House of Representatives, last February, in their report avow their belief that the construction of this telegraph is practical and more likely to succeed than any other route or mode yet suggested.

It will be seen that the eastern route proposed to be traversed by the main trunk line of telegraph follows the great post and caravan route [illegible] from Moscow to the heart and centre of Russo-Chinese commerce, 4,000 miles east. Siberia herself has been called the California of Russia. She pours into Russia about $15,000,000 of gold yearly.—At Nijne Novgorod the celebrated fairs, the greatest in the world, are held. These regulate the commerce and exchanges between European and Asiatic Russia. The Kyachta trade [illegible] has developed a commerce of $1[illegible],000,000 to $20,000,000 and the amount of European merchandise consumed in Siberia is over $[illegible],000,000. A recent ukase of the Emperor grants to foreigners equal privileges with the native Russian merchants in all parts of the Empire. The Amoor is open to the trade and is navigable for steamers its whole length [illegible] but what the Chinese [illegible] they would allow no emigrants there, as they wished to [illegible] between them[illegible] [illegible] The Russian Government gave to Russia the sole privilege to construct and use this telegraph, but as a matter of amity the Government of Russia have given permission to Great Britain and France to share in its benefits.—N. Y. Times.

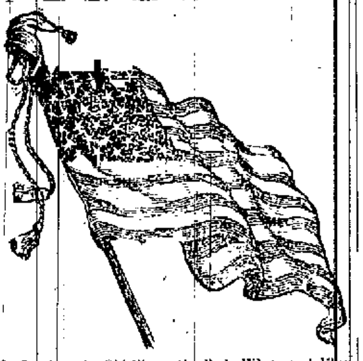
OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.



No flag but the Old Flag—the Red, White and Blue,
With the stars of a Union unbroken and true!
Arise and defend it! ye sons of the brave,
Whose blood bought the banner your valor must save.

TUESDAY MORNING, JAN. 21, 1862.

"Stand by the Government."

This doctrine is held sacred by every true American citizen—not more by republicans than by democrats in all the loyal States. The statements published by the secession press in Oregon, that the democratic party in any of these States is false to this doctrine, is untrue, and the lie is put forth only to deceive the people here. In all the loyal States there are traitors—more probably in Oregon and California than in any other of those States, but these traitors elsewhere than on the Pacific are chary of their acts, and their presses, when they become dangerous to the public peace, are suppressed by the arm of power. Do the democrats of the East complain of such suppression? Do the democratic presses not under suspicion of treason (and there are but few of these) utter complaints when traitorous papers are stopped and traitors are sent to Fort Lafayette or Fort Warren?

The pretence that there is any considerable party in the free States holding fellowship with the Breckinridge democratic party in Oregon, is the merest sham. There is no such party there—there may be a miserable faction—the leaders of which find their way into the fortresses for safe-keeping; but this is all.

What says the leading democratic paper of Massachusetts (the Boston Post) on the duties of the people in the crisis in which we now find our country? It says—"Stand by your Government! It would seem that the voices of the past, the frontage of the present, and all hope in the future, solemnly call on one and all to labor for unity in support of the National authority in this giant struggle to maintain the majesty of American law; to support the Constitution and the Union. And now, as the foreign cloud seems to gather more than ever before, ought the patriot to adopt the great words of Daniel Webster as he gave his support to Andrew Jackson in the times of the Nullification heresy: 'I say, when the standard of the Union is raised and waves over my head—the standard which Washington planted on the ramparts of the Constitution, God forbid that I should inquire whom the people have commissioned to unfurl it and bear it up; I only ask in what manner, as an humble individual, I can best discharge my duty in defending it.' Each must ask this question for himself; and if there be the spirit of service, the answer will be ready and the pathway will be plain. Whoever desires to act for the country has an opportunity now that a dozen lifetimes might not supply.

"Supply the Government with men! The sword is now the arbiter of right; and the best speeches are delivered from the muzzles of muskets against those in arms against the United States. The more there is of them the better. Never were troops more needful than they are now. It is not merely a blunder, but it is a crime, to underrate the power of this gigantic rebellion; to represent the Confederate hosts as weak, falling in pieces, demoralized, having but a shell of an army in Virginia. This is utterly false. They are powerful and have vast resources, and our Government, at this hour, needs fifty thousand more troops at the Capital. 'I feel it a duty to go again,' one of the three months men said recently, 'and have enlisted;' not that he wanted to fight, but that he desired to serve his country in her need. Cheer on such men. They make the best soldiers. Old Massachusetts has done nobly, and now that more is asked of her let her continue on in her glorious path.

"Subscribe to the National Loan! The foreigner may not understand, or wish to understand, the internal affairs of our Republic, but he knows the value of money; and when to this are added men, he can apprehend the full significance of the product. The steady progress of the National Loan is evidence of a home confidence that he can fully comprehend, and he may compare it with the stupidity of the London Times. That forty-five millions item for New York alone, all paid up, (Oct. 15) is a fact that will tell abroad; and to this is to be added the additional sums, just as patriotic, of Boston and other places. In a word, the response of the people to the call of the Government is grand—it is becoming grander every day as the loan becomes more and more general. To sustain this Government of the fathers should be the personal concern of each individual, for it is to each as life and strength and hope. If this country is the friend of one above another, it is the friend of the young man, native or adopted, who may enter upon the world with nothing but a clear heart and honest hands; for he is an equal to the proudest in the eye of the law, and this Government regards him such. Let the men of small means as well as the millionaire take a portion of the loan.

"Stand by the declared objects of the war! On these objects, the President, the Cabinet, the Congress, the States, are agreed: [illegible] a set of deluded and miserably shallow lay and clerical Emancipation fanatics rail against them. Down on these disturbers of unity in the people: down now on every rehearsal of old party strains; and as you value life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, even the existence of country, strive for the grand old spirit of fraternity that animated the master builders of our great temple.

"Stand by the Government! It is the grandest political heritage that ever was entrusted to man. Beyond all question there is more, than the unity in the loyal States in a determination to support simply THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION, than there was in the old Thirteen States in separating from Great Britain. What promotes this unity is patriotic—what mars this unity is detrimental; and of the latter are traits of thought cast in old party moulds. After the political mind of the country had pondered for thirty years (1760–1790) on fundamental politics, it came to the result of the Federal Constitution, both as the embodiment of our nationality and as fit for the harmonious play of the peculiar civilization that Providence had planted on this soil. Sir James Mackintosh termed this result the advance which the human mind had made in the science of politics. How unworthily seem old partisan arguments to account for the present frightful onslaught on it! The causes lie in wanderings from the rock foundations—because based on human nature—of the Fathers, on to the sandy soil of political smatterers or wiley and ambitious leaders in Abolitionism or Emancipation and Secession. Both are departures from the spirit that first gave us a Union, then a Flag, then a country, and then a Constitution.

"Stand by the Government! Let the foreigner see a great people united in defence of their Constitution and country."

This is the voice of the democracy in the loyal States. It is the voice of the democracy here. It is not the voice of the secession press.

No democratic Union press in the East huzzas for "Davis and Beauregard, as the glory of the land;" no democratic press there calls upon the people to pray to "God that our national arms shall be paralyzed;" no democratic press there calls upon Government to "compromise with treason and rebellion" in arms to crush the best government on earth. Presses which do this can only be found in Oregon—and are in league with the enemy.

The Union Movement.

A covey of quails were never thrown into greater confusion at the discharge of the sportsman's gun, than the secessionists all about Oregon on the publication of the notice, signed by Union men, calling a STATE UNION CONVENTION.

One of the secession papers says that the signers were deceived in putting their names to the paper; another, that the call will not be seconded by the people; and yet another throws out on the occasion the usual quantity of filth and blackguardism.

The signers of that call are known to be among the truest and best citizens of Oregon—old settlers, well known to the people—and men who do not take a step without duly weighing its importance.

We are certain that the masses are for the measure; that is, all who are true friends of the Constitution and the Union—who realize the value of our present Government, and who are willing to die, if need be, in its defence. They will rejoice that men known as leading citizens have taken the initiative, which is to place Oregon on high and unassailable Union ground. The masses of the people want this to be done, and in doing this they are willing to drop all political antecedents, and, as one man, stand by the old banner of the stars and stripes.

We are not disturbed by the agonies and contortions and shrieks of the secession press, which now greet our eyes and ears. We rejoice to see and hear them. It is an earnest of the fate of a party which builds its only hope of success in breaking down and humiliating our Government, in our own eyes and that of the world, by a compromise with traitors in arms.

DESTRUCTION OF COTTON IN SOUTH CAROLINA.—The Charleston correspondent of the Richmond Enquirer, Nov. 21, says:

The amount of cotton already burned on the plantations was very considerable. It is not easy to estimate the quantity with certainty, but it is generally said to be about fifteen hundred bales. Many of the planters, before quitting, saw fire put to their [illegible] such other property on their premises as could not be removed. It is certainly to be regretted that, in the confusion that prevailed, it is very proper she was not more generally taken.

[illegible] the last surprise at the invasion has now [illegible], and I think the Northern Government may reckon, without fear of mistake, that it has obtained the very least [illegible] cotton and also the least comfort [illegible] that it can ever hope to seize by pouncing upon the coast of South Carolina. Concerted arrangements between the planters and the military authorities have wisely been made by which no plantation will in future be abandoned until the crop is utterly consumed, the gin house and other buildings destroyed, the live stock driven off, and the hands removed to the interior. In the most exposed localities, that is, the islands adjacent to Port Royal, on which the enemy may at any moment make his appearance, the work of destruction is already commenced.

For the last few days gangs of negroes from the sea coast, laden with such effects as they can carry, and followed by droves of mules and horses, have been passing through [illegible] on their way to the back country. Night before last the whole atmosphere in the city, and for miles around, notwithstanding the bright moonlight, was hazy and lurid. Many could not account for the phenomenon. It was the effect of the wholesale conflagration of cotton now going on at Edisto and other islands intervening between Port Royal and Charleston. Whenever the invaders choose next to land, and it is useless to disguise the fact that they can land at a great many points, they will find nothing but devastated fields, deserted by all save the avenging presence of the partizan riflemen. The patriotic sacrifice which has been made by our planters is all the greater when we consider that the crops of the past season have far exceeded the best ever before known.

In my last letter I alluded to the strength of the defences of Charleston. Savannah also has been strongly fortified, on a plan for which the conformation of its harbor affords peculiar facilities; and I understand that General Lee says that that city is now in a condition to make a protracted and successful defense. General Lee has gone to Brunswick, Georgia.

A Missouri husband stood by the grave of his wife: I've lost cows, he said to a neighbor, as the coffin was lowered into the grave, I've lost sheep, I've lost horses, I've lost calves, but this is the wust of the hul lot.

A rash young man in this town has threatened to apply the Maine liquor law to his sweetheart, she intoxicates him so.

An unpoetical Yankee has described ladies' lips as "the glowing gateways of beans, pork and sauerkraut."

Many powder their faces, so that their skin may appear white; it is as a poulterer flours an old hen that it may pass for a young chicken.

The right man in the right place—a husband at home in the evening.

"Mary my love this apple dumplin is not half done."—"Well finish it then, my dear."

When is a tradesman's bill like a married man?—When it is settled.

What is placed upon the table, often cut, but never eaten?—A pack of cards.

Why can we not quell a tempest?—Because it is too laborious (to lay Boreas.)

An arch young lady should be an archer, for she can bend her beau just as she pleases.

CITY.

PASSERS-BY "TAKEN IN."—In front of one of our drug stores on Front street, hangs a thermometer, placed there for the convenience of any one who wishes to note the changes in the weather. Many persons took observations, and all were astonished, yesterday, to see the mercury standing about twenty degrees above the freezing point, when the weather was freezing cold. One man took a look at it as he stood there, and as he turned to see a passing sleigh, the mercury fell twenty degrees. His astonishment can hardly be imagined. He thought it was the "curiousest merkery he ever seed." Various were the opinions and conjectures passed as to the probable cause of the phenomenon; and they were on the point of making it one of the questions for debate in the Court-house, when it was discovered. It was very simple indeed—and even the most ignorant could understand it. It was done in this way: when no one was looking, Prof. S———e, the noted chemist of the store, could take the instrument in, and by placing it near his mouth and blowing his warm breath on it, would produce the sudden and various changes of the weather. The crowd dispersed, and the thermometer was itself again, and of course gave a correct indication of the state of the weather.

WHOSE DUTY IS IT?—The side-walks on Morrison street, in the vicinity of the Public School house are in a wretched condition; one's neck is endangered in passing by that way. If our City Charter is not adequate for the purpose of enforcing an ordinance to this effect, we might as well repeal the whole thing at once, and not enforce the law against one portion of our citizens and not against the other.

PRETTY GOOD.—One of our young men, who is in the habit of attending balls and parties, invariably takes with him a small pocket flask, well loaded with old rye, and at every opportunity, quietly takes a "nip." On being asked by one of his friends why he did it, said "Well, I'll tell you why; It makes me talk like H——l!" laying considerable stress on the last word. Curious, ain't it?

THE DEBATE AT THE COURT-HOUSE.—The discussion now going on at the Court-house, in this citys draws large crowds nightly. At the close last evening, some persons were guilty of hissing, an act which no gentleman would do at a friendly debate. The discussion will be resumed to-night.

STARVATION OF CATTLE. — From persons who have arrived from the interior, we are sorry to learn that the farmers are sustaining great losses from the dying of their cattle by starvation. This is particularly the case all along the streams, which carried away the feed during the late flood.

FROM VANCOUVER.—A sleigh express was running yesterday to and from Vancouver. Quite a number of passengers went and came. There is no news of any importance with our neighbors.

NO NAVIGATION ON THE UPPER WILLAMETTE.—Owing to the accumulation of large quantities of ice near Rock Island, on the Upper Willamette, no steamboats are now running.

CAUTION.—In view of the expected thaw, and the breaking up of the ice on the river, we would caution parties who are in the habit of crossing the same, to "look before they leap."

CLATSOP POTATOES.—Mr. Parker has still a few of the celebrated Clatsop potatoes, which are not frozen. They are for sale at Richards & McCraken's cellar.

☞ The Medical and Surgical Institute of DR. L. J. CZAPKAY is already secured in a position which places it as well as its proprietor far above the assaults of envy and professional malice. In the schools of France, the highest prizes are often awarded to practitioners in this department of medical science, and they occupy, with others, an equally lofty position in the profession. Ricord is an illustrious example, a shining light among the philosophical stars of his age in Europe, and Dr. Czapkay has fully equalled him in this country, as a proof of which the Philadelphia College of Medicine complimented him with a Diploma and the honorary ad eundem degree. Selecting this as his field of operation after having graduated at the University of Pesth, and late Chief Surgeon of the Hungarian Revolutionary army, he has extended his labors. Dr. L. J. Czapkay has bent his greatest attention to the cure of chronic and private diseases in which he has become so great an expert that he is now regarded as the first man in this branch of his profession throughout the United States, and his portrait and biography are published as matter of interest to their readers in the most exclusive journals. The Doctor's office is at his Medical and Surgical Institute on Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, nearly opposite the buildings of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, San Francisco. We ask particular attention of our readers to the sworn certificates of remarkable cures in another column of this paper. Persons not wishing to be seen, are corresponding, please enclose $5 in their letters and they will get immediate attention to their cases. Address L. J. CZAPKAY, M. D., San Francisco, Cal. june26-d&wly

☞ Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of PULMONARY, BRONCHIAL and ASTHMATIC AFFECTIONS. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. PUBLIC SPEAKERS and SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice. See advertisement.

SEWING MACHINES

ARE UNEQUALLED BY ANY FOR

BEAUTY AND SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION

—AND—

Efficiency in Working.

A GOOD SEWING MACHINE

SHOULD BE WELL MADE, simple in its construction, and easily kept in order, should make a tight lock-stitch, alike on both sides of the material, and should sew any and all materials that can be sewed.

It should be able to use cotton, thread, or silk, directly from the spool, and to sew from coarse to fine, and from thick to thin, with rapidity, and without changing the tension. It should also be able to make the tension greater or less, on both the under and upper threads, and with uniformity; and should have a straight needle; curved ones being liable to break.

The needle should have perpendicular motion—this is absolutely necessary for heavy work.

It should be able to bind with a binder, hem with a hemmer; should stitch, fell, run and gather; and always ready to work.

It should be capable of using the same size thread on both sides of the work, and of using different colored thread or silk above or below, to correspond with any two colors of cloth to be united.

It should be able to make a long or short stitch, and to fasten off the seam, and commence sewing tightly at the first stitch, and to run easily, and make but little noise.

It should have a wheel-feed; no others are in constant contact with the work.

It should not be liable to get out of order; neither should it require a screw-driver or wrench to set the needle.

It should not be liable to oil the operator's dress.

It should not form a ridge on the under side nor ravel.

A Hallow E'en Frolic.

"I am tired of conventionalities! I will have one day of genuine fun," I said. "I am going to see my cousins [illegible], at Chestnut Corner, and have a flirtation with their beaux, in real rustic style. I shall wear my flaming red and black plaid dress, with black velvet bows in my hair, and I shall not be too fine for any kind of romping."

"Well my dear, this is Hallow Eve, a great time for flirting in the country, and made much of in your uncle's house. Have your play out, and come back refreshed."

So I dropped down upon my country cousins one bright October day. They were a jovial set, and quite ready to respond to my wishes for "genuine fun."

Before afternoon a nutting party was got up, and a vigorous time we had of it! But it is with the evening that I have to do now.

The youths of the nutting party all went home to supper, having horses and cattle to feed or sheep to fold. But they promised to return in an hour or so, and we were to have the usual festivities of the night—roasting chestnuts, eating apples, and trying our future fate by the candle conjuration and story-telling.

The roaring wood fire danced up the chimney from the span-clean kitchen hearth, and about seven o'clock we were all assembled about it.

In the corner, to the right, sat dear old uncle, and in the opposite one his merry wife.

Next to him I came, being the honored guest on this occasion. Then Hiram Hasher—"my beau," the girls called him, from his being so attentive to me all the afternoon, that I could hardly gather a nut without his interference. Next to Hiram came Sally Nixon, then her beau, and so on alternately, until the half circle ended with my aunt.—Firelight never danced on blither features.

"First let's pop some corn," was the cry, and it was done.

"There's suthin else I'd like to pop," whispered Hiram.

"What?" said I, innocently.

"The question—if you'll say 'yes' to it."

I noticed that this joke was whispered into several other ears, and I began to suspect that the corn was called for principally to introduce it. Country folks do get so attached to an old joke! They scorn a new one as they do a new theory in agriculture.

When each girl had a lapful, and each youth a pocketful of corn to munch, we proceeded to the chesnut roasting. A shovel with a long handle was brought. It was one my Uncle had made for the purpose, for the purpose, for he stoutly upheld the old time games, and he now placed it over the fire with a zealous earnestness that was very laughable to me. Upon it were placed two chesnuts, and my uncle called upon me to name them. So I said "that the little one, be Lizzie Brown, and the large one Nathan Wilding." These two were the most evident lovers of the party. The shovel grew hot. We watched in breathless interest. The little chestnut, named Lizzie, began to sing and glide about. It fairly danced at length, around the motionless large one, while we shouted with delight to see the demure Lizzie's representative paying such frolicsome court to Nathan's. The poor fellow, blushed and felt quite ashamed of his proxy. Presently, however, the steam from the large chestnut went off like a gun, and the little one seemed so alarmed that it sprang into the fire.

"There, you have got the mitten, Nathan!" cried the young men, delighted.

"No!" said Nathan, in a disappointed, deprecating tone. Just then Nathan's nut began to dance more vigorously, and at last edged itself off into the fire also.

"There, I thought I'd do that," said he, highly gratified, and looking around proudly. "Thought I'd go after, and not be such a sneak as to give up so!"

Two more were called for, and named "Hiram Hasher and the city girl."

"Yes, yes," said my aunt, laughing till the tears ran out of her eyes, "Ask and Hiram, the long, white-topped one Hiram, and the little dark brown one Ada."

I confess that I felt quite tremulous, and anxious that my chestnut should behave itself, while Hiram leaned forward, mouth and eyes open, gazing with ludicrous faith at the scene.

While he was thus intent I saw my chestnut begin to whirl and waltz rapidly on its own axis, while he watched it.—But mine at last popped straight off, and struck the gazer a smart blow on the nose, at which he drew up with a sudden jerk, that set us roaring till the rafters rang again.

I was so innocent as to be delighted at the spirited conduct of my little deputy. But my exultation was short lived, for to my horror, Mr. Hiram turned to me, blushing to the ears, and before I had time to dodge, had given me a hearty kiss upon the cheek. I am naturally quick-tempered, and entering thoroughly into the sport, I started up with the intention, I do believe, of bestowing a box on the ear, in return for the kiss, but he caught my hand, and stammered—

"It—it—it—it's the custom! I didn't mean to offend."

So I laughed with the rest, and two more chestnuts were put on the shovel. An hour passed in this amusement and then came the time for the stories.

Remarkable Instance of Medical Relief

perform even the most trifling duty imposed upon the ordinary avocations of life, I sought the advice of many physicians, who at first regarded my disease as of trifling importance—but, alas! after a few weeks, and in several instances, months, of their treatment, I found to my unutterable horror that instead of relief, my symptoms became more alarming in their torture, and being told by one that my disease being principally confined to the brain, medicine would be of little consequence, I despaired of ever regaining my health, strength and energy; and as a last resort, and with but a faint hope, called upon Dr. Czapkay, who, after examining my case, prescribed some medicine which almost instantly relieved me of the dull pain and dizziness in my head. Encouraged by the result, I resolved to place myself immediately under his care, and by a strict obedience to all his directions and advice, my head became clear, and my ideas collected, the constant pain in my back and groins, the weakness of my limbs, the nervous reaction of my whole body on the slightest alarm or excitement, the misanthropy and evil forebodings, the self distrust and want of confidence in others, the incapability to study, and want of resolution, the frightful exciting, and at times pleasurable dreams at night, followed by involuntary discharges, have all disappeared, and in fact, in two months after having consulted the doctor, I felt as if inspired by a new life—that life which but a short time ago I contemplated to end by my own hand. With a view to guard the unfortunate from falling into the snares of incompetent quacks, I deem it my duty to offer this testimony to the merit and skill of Dr. Czapkay, and to recommend him to all who may stand in need of medical advice, being assured by my own experience, that once under his care, a radical and permanent cure will be effected.
